

The Story of Nevan Evanstone

Nevan Evanstone loved Gearford, loved the way the buildings fit with one another, and the conveyor systems synced one path with another. It filled his city with a literal hum of contentment.

But somewhere, Nevan knew a piece was missing.

From a young age, his building blocks were gears and wheels and chains, but the more pieces he discovered, the more he became frustrated that he could not pin down what was missing.

The only time Nevan could still his hands was at bedtime, when the vibration of his mother's voice filled his head with her stories of explorers like his namesake, Nevada "Neva" Harrington.

Neva, famed for her daring midnight flight across the Great Iron Mountains, forever changed the skies with her courage and ingenuity.

On his tenth birthday, his mother took him to the grand libraries of Gearford to see the blueprints of his beloved city. He was thrilled at the idea of learning every cog and every wheel.

But fate had other plans that would wrap him deeper into the mystery of his search for his missing piece...

Equipped with his self-made gadgets and driven by an AI companion he crafted from discarded clockwork, Nevan ventures out, determined to uncover the mysteries of the past and shape the future of learning.
